

Social and Personal

Misses Anne and Emily Royall, who, with their mother, Mrs. William L. Royall, spent the Christmas holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Baker Gurnee Hamill at their home in Trenton, N. J., are now in New York for two weeks with their aunt, Mrs. Thomas Bolling. Later they will return to Trenton for a month, and with Mrs. Royall will visit Atlantic City and New York and relatives in Baltimore, before returning to Richmond in the spring.

Mrs. Bolling, who has leased her home on West Franklin Street for the winter months to Mrs. T. A. Cary, will leave New York for Bermuda some time early in February.

Mr. and Mrs. David Meade, of White Post, Clarke County, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jennie Lewis Meade, to Walter Miller Spill, of Harrisonburg. The wedding will take place in the Meade Memorial Church at White Post some time during the month of April.

Miss Meade is a very attractive young girl, and is widely related throughout the State.

The marriage of Miss Mildred Leeds Zell and Robert Taylor, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor, of Catonsville, took place at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at Emmanuel Protestant Episcopal Church. In the presence of a large and fashionable assemblage.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Edwin Barker Niver, rector of Christ Church, assisted by Dr. Hugh Black, head, rector of Emmanuel Church. The church was banked with palms and lilacs.

The bride entered with her uncle, Edward Forbes, of New York, by whom she was given in marriage. Her gown was of white tulle, embroidered in orange blossoms and pearls, and she wore a tulle veil over a point lace cap and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids. The attendants included the maid of honor, Miss Mary Bonnell Tishman, who wore a costume of white satin and silver lace, with touches of pale blue, and a small cap of silver lace and blue brocade, and carried a bouquet of pink roses; two little flower girls, Miss Frances Taylor, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Eleanor Brown, who wore white frocks with pink sashes and carried baskets of pink roses, and the bridesmaids, Misses Selby Zell, Clara Murray, Nancy Hardcastle and Dorothy Rowland. Their gowns were of pale pink satin, embroidered in orange blossom and silver, with chiffon caught with blue and blue flowers. They wore caps of blue brocade and silver lace and carried bouquets of pink roses.

The best man was George Winslow Taylor, brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers were Messrs. Joseph Winslow, of Atlanta, Ga., Talbot Brock Spear, of Lee Park, and Richard Lloyd Tishman, George Nicholas and John Disher.

A reception followed at 14 East Road.

Mrs. Clarke Entertains.
A pretty function of the holiday season was that given at East 14th by Mrs. D. C. Clarke, at her beautiful home, "Lockwood," on January 3, to celebrate the birthday of her son, George. The wide old rooms of the house were decorated with many shaded lights and Christmas garlands.

The hostess received her guests in the hall, assisted by her niece, Miss Lipscomb. The table in the dining room was set beneath a canopy of pink and green tulle, and arranged with a centerpiece of roses, and the birthday cake with its lighted candles. Fortunetelling and ghost stories amused the guests, and supper was served in the dining room at half-past 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Clarke's guests for the evening included Misses Margaret Burke and Rosalie Lipscomb, of King William; Annie Walton, Hazel Kirke and Jessie Elippo, of Atlas; Messrs. George Trimble, Leith Brommer, Tazewell Brooks, Hugh and Ashby Walton and Ellett and George Clarke.

Quiet Wedding.
Says a Baltimore exchange: "Alfred Partridge Klotz left Wednesday for Chicago, where he will paint the portraits of several important persons. On his return he will paint the portrait of Mrs. James S. Wheeler. The Art Institute of Chicago will give in March a special exhibition of the work of Mr. Klotz, including a number of portraits of prominent Baltimoreans. Mrs. Klotz, who has been in Paris since early in the winter, will join Mr. Klotz in Baltimore in February."

Mr. Klotz was a guest of Colonel and Mrs. Joseph E. Willard here earlier in the winter, when he painted the portrait of Eppa Hunter, Jr.

The marriage of John J. Harvey and Miss Beattie Dugan was celebrated very quietly yesterday morning at 11 o'clock in the residence of the Rev. W. L. Bell, D. D., with only the nearest relatives of the bride witnessing the ceremony. The bride wore a dark blue cloth traveling suit with a picture hat of the same shade. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey left immediately after the ceremony for on their return to this city. They will make their home at 5122 Stuart Avenue.

Meetings This Afternoon.
There will be a meeting of the Grandchildren's Chapter, No. 1, auxiliary to Richmond Chapter, U. D. C. held in the William Fox School, on Hanover Avenue. The meeting will be one of a great deal of interest, since a number of the children will discuss their visit on Christmas to the hospital at the Old Soldiers' Home for the benefit of those who did not make this visit. A number of them went to the home, accompanied by Mrs. Joseph Fourqurean, Jr., Mrs. Brokenbrough and Mrs. Tyler, and were met by Mrs. Randolph and Mrs. Brandt. There they visited the sick with gifts of fruit and flowers, bringing happiness to great many suffering and lonely people.

The Alumnae Association of Miss Ellett's School will meet this afternoon at 3:45 o'clock in the school building. Tea will be served by the board, after the business of the meeting has been concluded.

Equal Suffrage League.
An event in the history of the Equal Suffrage League of Richmond was a deeply interesting and instructive address before league members and their friends and guests on the subject of "International Arbitration," by Hon. Wynndham Meredith, who was introduced by Mrs. Lacy S. Coleman. In a very graceful manner, Mr. Meredith, in the beginning of his talk, mentioned the 196 national convicts that have been held in the history of the world, and drew a contrast between individual and national traits and standards of morality. He dealt and standards of morality. He characterized his meaning by explaining the salient features of the treaty between England and the United States of April, 1898. He said that the great nations of the earth had settled questions of boundaries and territorial expansion, and that national and international relations turned upon commercialized interests.

He dwelt upon and explained the third article in the treaty of 1898, and showed the disastrous effects of its being cut out of the treaty because members of the Senate Committee felt that it restricted their powers. Mr. Meredith announced himself as being earnestly in sympathy with the cause of suffrage, and said that the reason above all others that made him a suffragist was because he believed that the many years the coming of the reign of universal peace and the cessation of war on the earth.

Miss Coleman thanked Mr. Meredith in the name of the club for his address, and spoke a few words on her own behalf very eloquently and appropriately.

LOST BEAUTY OF WOMEN
Can Be Remedied, in Many Instances, According to Statement of Mrs. Lucile McElroy.

Laurel, Miss.—In a letter from this place Mrs. Lucile McElroy says: "I was sick for three years with backache, headache, pains in my stomach and back, low down. At times I could not do a thing, I was so weak."

After I was married I thought I would try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and after using two or three bottles I couldn't tell one day from another—felt good all the time.

I not only still use Cardui, but advise every lady I think needs it to give it a trial, and several whom I have persuaded say they have obtained great relief.

Another good thing I have noticed about Cardui is that it fills out hollows under the eyes which are sunken as if from a bad spell of sickness. It freshens up a woman's eyes and makes them look bright and plump. Many a woman would be pretty if it were not for her sunken-in eyes.

I believe that Cardui, the woman's tonic, is the only treatment for women."

Do you suffer from womanly trouble? If so, give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial.

Judging from the experience of a million other women who have been benefited by this remedy, it should surely do you good.

TAKEN TO MARION HOSPITAL.
Twelve Criminal Insane Patients Removed From Williamsburg.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Williamsburg, Va., January 9.—A special car carrying twelve patients from the Eastern State Hospital to the hospital for the criminal insane at Marion, left here this morning, attached to the fast Chesapeake and Ohio train for Richmond. Among the insane are murderers and others guilty of lesser crimes, some of them being desperate lunatics. The party was in charge of Dr. George Hopkins, assistant superintendent; Supervisor Eugene Morris and Attendants Marshall Brooks and Gus Dunway.

Word has been received here of the death in her home near Warsaw, Ind., last Sunday, of Mrs. Julia Yeakel, aged eighty-three years, mother of George Yeakel, of Magruder, York County.

Mrs. Yeakel visited her son here on several occasions and is well remembered by the people of Magruder.

Henry M. Sweeney, Sr., chief clerk at the Eastern State Hospital, has been very ill this week with heart trouble. While he is said to be better to-day, it is thought his condition is critical.

Patrons of the Williamsburg post-office persist in using the ordinary letter postage in mailing parcels post packages, much to the disadvantage of the local office and causing delay in forwarding the articles.

GOVERNMENT WINS ANTITRUST CASE
Permanent Injunction Granted Against Retail Lumber Dealers' Association.

New York, January 9.—The government's petition for a permanent injunction against the Eastern States Retail Lumber Dealers' Association, alleged to be a combination in restraint of trade, was granted to-day by the Federal District Court. Final arguments for and against the injunction were made a few weeks ago.

The defendants include also the New York Lumber Trade Association, the Building Material Association, New Jersey Lumbermen's Protective Association, the Retail Lumbermen's Association of Baltimore, the Lumber Exchange of the District of Columbia, and others.

The government's petition, filed in 1911, alleges that the defendants were engaged in a conspiracy in restraint of interstate trade, operated through the instrumentality of blacklists, fines and expulsion from membership, and that by trade agreements they arbitrarily fixed prices.

In the petition the government asked that the defendants be perpetually enjoined from making any contract or combination in furtherance of their conspiracy. By to-day's decision this is granted.

EMBREY IS CANDIDATE FOR NEXT LEGISLATURE
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Fredericksburg, Va., January 9.—W. S. Embrey, a member of the City Council, and prominent in business affairs and well-known as a good road advocate, has announced himself as a candidate for the House of Delegates from the legislative district composed of the City of Fredericksburg and the County of Stafford.

Thomas L. Hunter, a well-known attorney of King George County, is an applicant for the position of assistant district attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia under the coming Democratic national administration and has considerable backing.

It is hardly the case now that four brothers, all living, can be found who have served throughout the Civil War in the Confederate army, but such a case exists in King George County. These veterans are the Price brothers. They are Luther Price, aged seventy-five years; J. B. Price, seventy-two years; D. B. Price, seventy years, and George W. Price, sixty-eight years. All of the more fine, substantial men have families, and some of them have grandchildren. It is probably the only incident in Virginia at this time.

Haymes, in North Chatham, at 2 o'clock Wednesday. Rev. Mr. Stables, of the Methodist Church, officiating. SULTAN OF TURKEY NEVER GOES TO BED

By This Means Apparently He Expects to Live Forever.

BY LA MARQUISE DE FONTENAY.

HERE is one sovereign in Europe who never goes to bed for one year and to the other—who has not, indeed, slept in a bed for nearly a quarter of a century. It is the present Sultan of Turkey. Like his elder brother, ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid, he is very superstitious. When he was very young a fortune teller from Salonica, who was visiting his harem, while relieving him of the fear of assassination, of which he then, as now, died in dread, predicted that he would sleep on a sofa or couch in a sitting position, reclining against a pillow, which means against the wall. By this means apparently he expects to live forever, although his health is, according to all accounts, in a shocking condition, infinitely worse, indeed, than that of ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid, who is said to turn in a palace on the Asiatic shores of the Bosphorus.

The Sultan's fortune tellers have long been famous in Turkey, and are welcome visitors in all the harems. They are women of Spanish-Jew descent, with a very strong strain of Gitan blood in their veins. They are descended from the Jews expelled from Spain by King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella, by Emperor Charles V. and Philip II. In Charles V.'s time a vast number of these exiles were invited by Sultan Saliman to settle in his dominions, and he encouraged them to establish themselves as a nation, believing that they might be of use to him in his warfare against Germany, in an economic if not in a military sense. Their descendants have remained Jews, and have retained the Spanish language to this day. The women of the lower classes are, many of them, adepts in the arts of palmistry and divination.

Ruthyn Castle, the grand old place in Denbighshire of Colonel William Cornwallis West, father of the young Duchess of Westminster and the Princess of Pleas, which he has just advertised for sale in the early spring, was near a hundred years ago the subject of a species of lottery. For the various daughters of Richard Myddelton, on his death drew lots for the possession of the property. Maria Myddelton was the winner. She married the Hon. Frederick West, younger son of the second Earl de la Warr. They were the grandparents of Colonel William Cornwallis West, and it was through them that he inherited the castle.

castle and the very extensive estates. The castle is an old fortress of the Marches of Wales, was built by Edward I upon rising ground, in a dish of mountains and takes its name of Ruthyn from Rhyddin, the Welsh for the hue of the stone employed in its construction. In 1382 it was granted by the crown to one Reginald de Grey, from whom the Lords Grey de Ruthyn descend. It underwent many vicissitudes in the course of history, was seized on one occasion by Owen Glendower and besieged and taken also by General Sutton, one of the principal commanders of Oliver Cromwell, who pronounced it to be "the most convenient place for a garrison in all North Wales, as things now stand with us."

The castle is extremely interesting. In fact, its interest may be said to be almost inexhaustible, since the full extent of the great area of dangerous underground has never been entirely explored. With its grand octagon tower, its ancient walls, its moat, its stately terraces, it constitutes a particularly appropriate background and setting for those staidedfods so strongly suggestive of old Wales, that have often been held there.

If Colonel William Cornwallis West is offering his entire property in the sale of a castle for sale—a sale which will probably entail his resignation of the high office of lord lieutenant of the County of Denbigh, since the possession of land in the shire is an indispensable qualification to the appointment of the sovereign's principal representative there—it is because he has the estate of Newlands, on the borders of the New Forest, and overlooking, so to speak, the Solent. Passionately fond of yachting, both Colonel Cornwallis West and his wife, one of the most famous beauties in the England and Ireland of a few years ago, have always preferred Newlands to Ruthyn Castle, and the neighboring prosperous seaside resort, known as Milford-on-Sea, owes its entire existence to the Wests, who derive there from a considerable revenue.

Newlands comes to the colonel through the Cornwallis family, to which, however, he is in no sense of the word related. When the last Earl of Cornwallis and famous military commander of the century ago, without leaving any heir, he bequeathed his Hampshire estates to his friend the late Frederick West, the father of Colonel W. Cornwallis West, who received the permission of the crown to assume the name and arms of Cornwallis in conjunction with his own, on becoming possessor of the castle. At Ruthyn Colonel Cornwallis West has always been obliged to maintain a considerable staff, and was overwhelmed with obligations of every kind as lord lieutenant of the county. At Newlands he is merely the prosperous and enthusiastic yachtsman, and free to follow his own devices and has consequently felt more at home there.

Colonel Cornwallis West does not roll up the additional duties imposed upon the lord lieutenant of counties under the new regime, and in view of the onerous fiscal burdens which the present Chancellor of the Exchequer has placed upon the owners of land, finds it too great a drain upon his resources to keep up several establishments.

It is also well known that neither Colonel Cornwallis West nor his wife have passed with the marriage of their only son, George Cornwallis West, to the New York-born widow of Lord Randolph Churchill; a lady whose sons, especially Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, are older than her young husband. The feud between Colonel and Mrs. Cornwallis West and their American friends has been wholly healed, and they have been wholly healed, and they neither of them relish the idea of her queening it at Ruthyn Castle, as the principal lady of the county.

As their son has no children by his marriage and is not likely to have any, the Colonel and Mrs. Cornwallis West prefer to convert the Ruthyn Castle property into cash, so as to add to their own income during their respective lives, and to the competence of the colonel's brilliant wife, if she survives her enormously tall and still wonderfully good-looking husband.

The colonel is slow of speech, that is to say, he stammers. His wife, like all brilliant Irish women, is terribly impatient, and nothing is more impatient than to witness her impatience when he talks and begins to stutter. The more impatient she becomes the more he stutters, and when I used to see much of them—true, some years ago—matters would generally wind up by her flinging a book, preferably, or the first light object handy, at him in her exasperation, missiles which long experience has taught him to dodge with a degree of quickness and deftness hardly to be expected of so big a man.

The colonel and his wife have retained the affection of their two beautiful daughters to a very extraordinary degree, and the Princesses of Pleas, whose name of Mary has been transferred to Daisy, and the young Duchess of Westminster, who though christened Constance, has always been known by her own people as Shelagh, are never so happy as when staying with their wonderfully good-natured, genial father, who idolizes them, and with their mother, with whom they have so much in common, in everything save stature. For whereas they are both "divinely" tall, Mrs. Cornwallis West, like her mother, that wonderful old Lady Olivia Pitt-Rivers—the most lively of persons' wives that it has ever been my fate to encounter—is decidedly petite.

Reports of Commission Contain Comparative Statistics of Great Value.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Charlottesville, Va., January 9.—Dr. Thomas W. Page, professor of economics at the University of Virginia, and lately a member of the Tariff Board of the Federal government, was the chief speaker at the January University Hour this afternoon in Cabell Hall.

Students and visitors made up one of the largest audiences of the session. The students sang some of the old songs and "The Good Old Song" with spirit, and cheered the speaker lustily. K. B. Steele, president of the medical class, presided. Manager Gill, of the basketball team, spoke briefly of the new schedule. He pointed out the fact that the schedule for this season is the most ambitious the Virginia team has ever entered upon. D. H. Rodgers, of the law department, discussed the triangular debate with North Carolina and Johns Hopkins, and urged students to try to make the team.

Dr. Page devoted a half-hour to a discussion of tariff making by means of a tariff commission. He traced the successive steps in the development of the tariff board idea in this country and then proceeded to show how, by the accident of political exigencies, the board appointed by President Taft did not accomplish as much as it could have done, and should have been permitted to do. As a matter of fact, however, he said that the reports of the board, now accessible, will be of very great service to the Democrats in revising the tariff downward. These reports contain comparative statistics of insupportable value in tariff making.

To-night, Prof. William Holding Echols, professor of mathematics, addressed the members of the St. Paul's Club in the Madison Hall smoking-room. His subject was "Truth."

A beautiful bronze statue of George Washington has been erected on the lawn. It is now complete. The draperies and scaffolding have been removed. It stands near the east end of the lawn, and occupies a splendid position. It is a duplicate of the replica of Houdon's statue, and is the gift of John T. Lupton, of the class of 1888.
